II.2.4) Description of the procurement

The scope for this procurement will cover project and all pre-application planning related community and stakeholder engagement, and communication.

This will include reviewing existing preliminary stakeholder analyses, and maintaining a current and relevant stakeholder list.

It will require the drafting and maintenance (evolution) of an engagement strategy and plan.

It will include communications and outreach to ensure Trydan gets the best possible introduction to the local area, at the very early stages of project development. Working with a multidisciplinary project team, including EIA consultants, you will be required to design and manage opportunities for local communities and stakeholders to help shape the project through non-statutory and statutory consultation events. You will navigate the project through pre-application consultation requirements and be part of delivering the Consultation Report.

As a major infrastructure project, the project will follow the new process defined in The Infrastructure (Wales) Act 2024 .

You will also facilitate local engagement to help the projects prepare to deliver relevant and optimal embedded and added social value.

Some broader, Wales-wide communication and engagement may also be required within the remit, where there is an interface between local and national interests.
