II.1.4) Short description

Children and young people (CYP) in London suffer from poorer health outcomes than elsewhere in the country, across a number of areas from higher levels of mortality and serious illness, poorer mental health, variability in outcomes from common diseases such as asthma, and significant public health issues such as obesity. More recently they are feeling the impact of COVID-19. London has world-leading centres of excellence for tertiary paediatric care and some excellent examples of primary and secondary care but there are big differences in quality. We wish to draw on this wealth of expertise, specialist professionals, leaders, world class services and organisations to harness and help drive improvements in the health outcomes, future prospects and well-being of its 2 million plus children and young people and their families. As result we want to set up a CYP Improvement Collaborative for London, the purpose of which is to identify, learn, and scale models of care which integrate public

Open Procedure to source a provider to support Children and young people (CYP) in London suffer from poorer health outcomes than elsewhere in the country, across a number of areas from higher levels of mortality and serious illness, poorer mental health, variability in outcomes from common diseases such as asthma, and significant public health issues such as obesity. More recently they are feeling the impact of COVID-19. London has world-leading centres of excellence for tertiary paediatric care and some excellent examples of primary and secondary care but there are big differences in quality. We wish to draw on this wealth of expertise, specialist professionals, leaders, world class services and organisations to harness and help drive improvements in the health outcomes, future prospects and well-being of its 2 million plus children and young people and their families. As result we want to set up a CYP Improvement Collaborative for London, the purpose of which is to identify, learn, and scale models of care which integrate public health, primary and secondary care, health and social care, and physical and mental health for the benefit of babies, children, young people and their families to drive implementation of change and to leave a long-term legacy of Quality Improvement and a community of practice. The contract is for an improvement partner to help implement this programme of work provide QI improvement methodology and run cycles of change with test sites identified by our ICS partners and provide coaching and support to the teams.

The purpose of the CYP Collaborative is to support ICS with their plans to integrate care and to identify, develop test and spread models of integration for children and young people in London that must cover either:

- o Primary with secondary specialist care
- o Health and social care and education
- o Physical and mental health

The national CYP programme in NHS England and Improvement funding requires that test sites address at least two of the categories below. Therefore, at least one of the sites in the collaborative should be testing models for children with a single long-term condition, and for children with medical complexity.

- Improving quality of care around long term conditions such as asthma, diabetes, epilepsy and obesity
- Working together to integrate physical and mental health
- Working across traditional boundaries to improve care for children and young people with learning disabilities, autism, SEND needs and looked after children
- Considering and addressing additional challenges posed/opportunities for new ways of working due to the Covid-19 pandemic

- Tackling inequalities within the system
- Improving transition from children to adolescent to adult services

The collaborative will be an opportunity to do something different to support improvements in CYP by trying to close the gap in health and well-being outcomes for all children and young people across the capital irrespective of where they were born, where they live and go to school,

In London we have a number of existing initiatives that have demonstrated improvements in outcomes for children and young people which include Connecting Care for Children in NWL, The CHILDS Programme from the CYP Health Partnership in south east London (SE) and the Well Centre in SEL ICS, Health Spot and children's social prescribing in north east London (NEL) ICS and a programme of Learning together across many parts of the capital and collaborative child health expertise developed through the Health London Partnership.

These have expertise in innovation, implementation, evaluation and spread which the collaborative can tap into to provide additional capacity. We propose to harness these and other valuable resources to improve the health, future prospects and well-being of CYP in London through working with our improvement partner
