The award decision-makers were:

Through the assessment of their submission, the provider meets each of the key criteria listed as part of the PSR process.

Stand out points include:

1. Quality / innovation - the service is developing to respond to the need of the population, through the existing telephone platform but also developing the sms system and online presence.
2. Value - due to the model of provision, the return on investment ratio for the service is high for this service; the cost to run is minimal yet is available to the entire adult population of Surrey.
3. Integration, collaboration and service sustainability - the service works collaboratively within the substance misuse system and wider health and social care partnerships, with well defined signposting opportunities.
4. Improving access, reducing health inequalities and facilitating choice - the service offers a range of contact points, including a 24/7 option. As well as substance misuse, the volunteer call handlers provide information, advice and signposting for a range of health and social care-related services.
5. Social value - the service uses local volunteers, including those with lived experience, to operate the service. The commitment to offer opportunities to those with lived experience is well recognised within the submission.
