Scope

Reference

JPS1822

Description

A package of programmes for families offering at least three different levels of support. The objective of all programmes will be to help young people and their families recognise, understand and be provided with strategies and mechanisms to manage challenging behaviour. Young people will have been identified as being at risk of becoming involved in crime, violence or repeat victimisation. On some occasions the young person may have come to notice of police due to being the perpetrator of child on parent abuse. An initial triage will be completed by members of the Reboot team whereby three levels of support will be offered based upon the information and believed risk level known at that time.
