University Hospitals Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust (the “Authority”) is conducting market engagement in relation to its requirement for a continuous improvement partner.

We are currently refreshing our organisational strategy which will place a greater emphasis on our role in improving the health of the population we serve, the quality and experience our patients and staff have whilst also reinforcing the identities of the local hospitals.

To help achieve this, we are looking to embed a culture of continuous quality improvement across the organisation. 'Quality Improvement' (QI) is the combined and unceasing efforts of everyone within an organisation to make the changes that will lead to better patient outcomes (health), better system performance (care) and better professional development (learning).

The programme will aim to deliver:

- Sustained and lasting change, through providing constancy of purpose, momentum and infrastructure needed for complex improvement initiatives.
- Improved patient outcomes, through the creation of a collaborative, inclusive, and safety-focused work environment.
- Improved staff morale and engagement, by giving staff more control over the system they work in, more autonomy to make changes, and equipping them with the tools and skills to tackle these.
- Improved organisational culture, as enabling all staff to focus on continual learning and improvement of patient care are identified as fundamental to creating healthy cultures in NHS organisations.
- Optimised efficiency and productivity through a sustained focus on reducing unwanted variation in services and practices, ensuring best use of resources.
