Taking inspiration from Claude Monet's Water Lilies and the garden in which he painted them, visitors will be invited to paint water and waves onto a monumental wall of canvas, creating a layered, collaborative painting of epic proportions. This will form the first layer of the painting, over which the public's wave-like, gestural brushstrokes will be added to create 'the flooded garden'.

Tate requires a skilled scaffolding partner to assist in the delivery of this installation, providing hire, delivery, erection, dismantling and clearing of scaffolding. Installation will take place from 8 to 18 July and de-installation 27 to 31 August.
