II.2.4) Description of the procurement

Lived experience is part of a broader recovery agenda which places more emphasis on person-centred outcomes, such as social inclusion and empowerment, rather than traditional clinical outcomes. It is broader than an experience of illness and encompasses an understanding of marginalisation, oppression and discrimination. Underpinning lived experience perspectives include shared understanding of loss or changes to social status/inclusion; relationships; employment and concepts of self.

People with severe mental illness (SMI) face health inequalities and live on average 15 to 20 years less than the general population. They are less likely to have their physical health needs met, including identification of health concerns and appropriate, timely screening and treatment.
