Description

The Department for Education (DfE) is looking to provide free period products to schools and post-16 education providers across England through a procurement to appoint a national provider.

The Period Products Scheme ensures that period products are available and accessible, free of charge, to girls and women who need them in schools and colleges. The scheme aims to reduce periods as a barrier to education, promote dignity and equality in learning environments and tackle stigma associated with periods. The scheme was introduced after a 2018 Omnibus Survey suggested that 14% of female college students and 6% of female school pupils has been unable to access period products in the last 12-months due to affordability and 83% of secondary school leaders made free period products available in their school.

Tackling this problem remains a key priority and is part of DfE's strategy to support the Government's mission to break down the barriers to opportunity; one of the six missions which form the centrepiece of our plan for change. This mission-led approach drives coordination between different programmes and workstreams by setting ambitious shared goals.

The Department has published a competitive flexible tendering opportunity to find a single national supplier who can from September 2026:

- Source an appropriate range of period products including reusable and environmentally friendly products
- Design and implement user interfaces and support services
- Plan and execute a national delivery service

We require a 'demand-led' service which must be available to approximately 21,000 organisations across England, with an accessible and easy to use means of interaction and product ordering.

The Department is also seeking to maximise the value of the scheme beyond the core offer through financial benefits, added value, and/or awareness activities and materials. In return, the Department proposes to offer a package of rights to the lead supplier and/or key sub-contractors/supply chain members.

For further information, please access the ITT documents via the Jaggaer e-Procurement platform (itt_3864).

The Department will be holding a Bidder Engagement Event on 12th February 2026, from 10:30am:

2. The session will be led by representatives of the Department for Education and will focus on the programme's requirements and the tendering process.

Justification for not using lots

The Department has considered whether the services could reasonably be supplied under more than one contract by dividing the procurement into Lots and has concluded that splitting the procurement into lots could make the requirement disproportionately expensive to manage and increase the technical risk to deliver the requirement, therefore, the Services will be supplied under one contract.
