1. The Trust is very happy with the same EMS after 4 years of learning curve and do not want to move over to any other solutions in the market at the moment, while the Trust has been expanding the usage of the EMS by using additional modules and adding extra Image Capture Devices in more departments within pervious contract periods, and is going to further extend the usage by introducing even more modules to the Trusts.

2. Medilogik is widely adopted across various NHS trusts and private healthcare providers (including the Community Diagnostic Centre in the region being managed by Inhealth) and, as per the Trust's comment, is by far the best Endoscopy Management System on the market in terms of functionality and operability. There are other systems but none that could provide the same specification required so has been unconsidered.

3. Medilogik is being integrated with Careflow and the department has initiated with IM&T works to integrate further with ICE, and further integration with Careflow, which also shows that it's may be difficult to move over to another solutions in the market.
