Thrombotic Thrombocytopenic Purpura (TTP) is a serious blood disorder that results in blood clots forming in small blood vessels throughout the body. It affects the kidneys, heart and brain. If a patient is treated outside a specialist centre, mortality is 50%; in a specialist centre, it is 20%. There is also an appreciable acute morbidity, particularly in neurological disorders.

The Condition can be difficult to diagnose because initial presentation can be non-specific and this is a very rare disease. Rapid treatment is essential for optimal outcomes and includes plasma exchange and a range of drugs. This disease primarily affects Adults. Children are treated in paediatric haematology centres and are outside the scope of this process.

Commissioners have identified a mapping error in the Population Mapping tab of Document 1a Annex A, which had the population of NHS Derby and Derbyshire CCG included in Lot 3 (West Midlands) when it should have been mapped to Lot 4 (East Midlands). This error has been corrected and Commissioners confirm that both the provider of Derby and Burton Hospital NHS Foundation Trust and the population of NHS Derby and Derbyshire CCG is in Lot 4 (East Midlands).
