Lot 1 Higher Risk Driver Training:

We currently require higher Risk driver training to be provided in the following formats but are considering a classroom based offer.

- Face to face for people who have been identified as high risk by the business
- Online training to individuals who have been identified as suitable by the business for online training or online refresher training (we see this as the same product).

Face to Face requirements

Learning outcomes as mentioned below and provided based on a 1:1 and 1:2 ratio (one instructor for one or two staff members). Defra Group do not require bespoke content so 'off the shelf' products would be suitable.

We expect the potential supplier to use trained and accredited trainers to deliver this specialist on the road driver training.

We expect the training to include a classroom or pre-learning theory element prior to the practical driving.

We require copies of relevant certification as part of the tender evidence process.

We will require evidence of how you can provide this training either using *supplier's equipment, or Defra group equipment (vehicles) or combination of both.

*Please including relevant insurance details if you intend to provide vehicles. If you require Defra group to provide the vehicles, please outline what documentation you require.

Face to face and online training must be accredited to a professional institute standard, such as Rospa or Institute of Advanced Motorists.

Target audience for face to face and online : Employees who drive over 6,000 miles a year for their role.

Additional High-Risk Drivers are employees who are identified at being at additional risk due to being an

- Inexperienced/newly passed driver,
- People with additional points on their licence,
- People who have recorded an accident or near miss at work,
- Employees who learned to drive on international/non-UK roads.

Delivery Methods:

Face to face training involving in vehicle training and assessment. We expect the training to include a classroom or pre-learning theory element prior to the practical driving.

Online Method: accessible via Defra group devices, compliant with MS based products including edge and chrome browsers

Approximate predicted numbers for face to face or online learning are estimated to be approx. 2500
