II.2.4) Description of the procurement

Railway stations play a key role in the end-to-end passenger journey and customer experience. They are open long hours, are relatively warm and provide amenities. They are busy with staff and passengers and equipped with CCTV; they can feel like a safer place than the streets for those who have to sleep rough.

Supporting individuals who come to our stations to seek respite is a key feature of our CP7 Social Value strategy to provide routes out of homelessness across the region. We have had a great deal of success with our CP6 strategy in this area and are keen to maintain and build on this in CP7. This will mean that those already working with us will continue to be supported to obtain and sustain accommodation, rather than returning to sleeping rough in and around the stations, and we can support additional people who our station staff encounter on a day-to-day basis.

Network Rail are committed to putting people first and putting social value at the heart of what we do, to improve the overall experience for everyone who interacts with the railway.

As part of Network Rail's commitment to the Department for Transport's Rough Sleeping on Rail Charter, which aims to address rough sleeping on the rail network, we wish to continue supporting people who sleep rough in and around major train stations and to empower our frontline employees to signpost individuals to the help they need.

Rough sleeping management includes the provision of a dedicated support service for people sleeping rough in and around the Managed Stations and equipping the employees working within those station teams with the knowledge, tools and resources required to provide support. Suppliers will ideally utilise staff that have lived experience of rough sleeping and homelessness.

We are considering a 3 +1+1+1 contract with an award to a single supplier.

This sourcing strategy looks for the tenderers to define what the best value scope of services is for our London Managed Stations here in the Southern Region in line with the budget listed above.

An online pre-market engagement event is scheduled for 20th June 2024 from 1100 - 1200.

Interested parties should email jacinta.kirkbridebrown@networkrail.co.uk to be added to the invite list.

Suppliers can also self invite by registering at networkrail.bravosolution.co.uk then searching the publish opportunities for 'Rough Sleeper Outreach' where you can also review further scope information and contract terms
