II.1.4) Short description

The personal skin care market and cosmetics industry is becoming increasingly complex. The majority of consumers are looking for skincare products with validated clinical/scientific analysis and personalised products. Businesses need measurable evidence that their treatments are working to encourage continued product use as well as inform new product development and efficacy. Therefore, an experienced business executive is needed to join the team and lead the company formation.

The initial brief of the executive will be to:

- (1) Produce a viable 5-year business plan;
- (2) Obtain university approval for the venture;
- (3) a. Act for the company in the spin-out legal process and address all company formation matters:
- b. Obtain founder academics' and Newcastle University (including the Head of Company Creation) approval for appointment as CEO.
- c. Provide to the appropriate university all matters necessary all reporting requirements, including ERDF;
- (4) Secure (venture capital and other) funding

Stage (4) will produce the funds by which the new start-up company can consider employing the executive going forward. It is expected, and the intent of the scheme, that the Executive will remain with the business following the end of the contract period. However, such appointment will be at the discretion of the board and appropriate university and will be subject to confirmation, typically at Stage 3 above

II.1.6) Information about lots

II.2.4) Description of the procurement

Newcastle, Durham, Sunderland and Northumbria universities, in common with universities throughout the UK, have advanced relevant systems and procedures and also dedicate significant public resource to both research and commercialisation of that research. A key route to commercialisation is the creation of a new business (a spin-out company) wherein the intellectual property (IPR) developed exclusively licenced to a university start-up company in exchange for (founders) shares in that company.

The universities ill engage suitably qualified and experienced executives through the DPS as and when required over the DPS period. The specific requirements will be detailed in each further competition.

The initial brief of the executive for which he/she will be paid, dependent upon the scope of the specific project engagement sought, either a payment or a combination of a payment and a share/stock option will typically be to:

- (a) produce a viable business plan;
- (b) obtain university approval for the venture;
- (c) act for the company in the spin-out legal process and address all the company formation matters;

(d) provide to the appropriate university all matters necessary for ESIF,ERDF and Research

England reporting requirements;

(e) secure (venture capital and/or other) funding in accordance with the business plan.
