The Authority is entering a period of unprecedented change. The future scale and shape of the Authority is unknown and will only emerge as the transformation journey unfolds over the coming years. What is certain is that things will be very different. In this reality it is essential that the core business processes of the Authority are as efficient and streamlined as possible and that individual managers and staff have the right tools and information at their fingertips in order to deliver the services of the Authority as effectively as possible.

The Core Business Transformation Programme is central to the Authority realising the changes it needs to make whilst ensuring its core business processes are appropriate for supporting a reshaped organisation. The programme seeks to bring about a transformation in the way Human Resources, Finance, P2P and Payroll activities are undertaken.

Whilst the Core Business Transformation Programme is predominantly a business change programme it does contain a significant technology refresh element. It is the aim of this procurement to deliver not only the technology to enable changed ways of working but also to deliver a transformed way of working that is flexible enough to support an organisation that is on a change journey that will last well beyond the initial technology implementation timeline.

It is for the above reasons that the Authority requires new systems and business processes to be operational and embedded well ahead of 2025.
