It is also important that all daily living activities are taken with an enabling approach, to promote the person's independence and rehabilitation.

The specification includes:

- The focus is on people maintaining their independence with the aim that they will return home.
- That some people leaving hospital will initially require the support of two people to undertake daily living tasks.
- To take a person centred and enabling approach to care (with the support of the community Multidisciplinary teams)
- Ensure the person is involved in all decisions affecting their own life and daily living
- Rooms to be accessible and appropriate for providing an enabling approach.
- To be flexible and support system pressures, including acceptance of weekend admissions.
