The National Museum of the Royal Navy has purchased retail premises at 1-4 Vision Retail and Leisure Park, Hartlepool which are located adjacent to the organisation's Hartlepool Museum. Although the end use of the units is yet to be determined there is a need for electronic security and safety systems to be installed that will help protect the premises from criminality and the threat of fire.

Suitably qualified suppliers are required to install intruder detection and fire alarm systems to enable this to happen. NMRN is seeking a single supplier for both systems.

NMRN's insurers have stipulated minimum requirements both systems must meet and NMRN has also consulted an independent security advisor to further inform the specification.
