NHS England London Region (hereafter referred to as "The Authority") invites interested, suitably qualified and experienced providers to attend a Market Engagement Event in advance of publication of Breast Screening Services across London and including west Hertfordshire.

Bidders will be asked to provide feedback after the event. The Authority will also publish feedback and Q&A after event.

Background

- The aim of breast screening is to reduce mortality from breast cancer by diagnosing cancer at an early stage when treatment is more successful.
- In England, the NHS currently offers breast screening to women aged from 50 up to their 71st birthday, every 3 years. Women aged 71 and over may self-refer every 3 years by contacting their local breast screening unit.
- Screening is provided in accessible screening sites (mobile units or static sites) and locations.
- Breast screening is a two-stage screening process:

1. Initially mammography for all women
2. Further screening tests for a small proportion of women

The additional tests are to confirm the presence of breast cancer or to reassure women that they have no sign of cancer and can be discharged back to routine screening.

- The programme also offers regular screening to women under 50 who have a Very High genetic Risk (VHR) of breast cancer, either because of a family history, because they are a carrier of a gene that puts them at a high risk of breast cancer (e.g. BRCA gene), or because they are on the Breast screening After Radiotherapy Dataset (BARD) database.
