II.1.4) Short description

The Army Warfighting Experiment Urban Series 2022-2024 is a Capability Investigation within a threat based tactical scenario.

It will employ live, virtual and constructive methods to produce evidence which: de-risks major equipment programmes; enhances relationships with industry, partners and allies; and accelerates Army modernisation and transformation.

By taking a longer, programmatic view and focusing on exploitation from the start, AWE Urban will help optimise elements of the force in order to hone the Army for urban operations.

II.2.4) Description of the procurement

The Army Warfighting Experiment Urban Series 2022-2024 is a Capability Investigation within a threat based tactical scenario.

It will employ live, virtual and constructive methods to produce evidence which: de-risks major equipment programmes; enhances relationships with industry, partners and allies; and accelerates Army modernisation and transformation.

By taking a longer, programmatic view and focusing on exploitation from the start, AWE Urban will help optimise elements of the force in order to hone the Army for urban operations.

A delivery team has now been established within the Future Capability Group at DE&S to provide the stability needed for a multi-year approach and improve communications between all stakeholders.

The finer details of the experiments are currently being designed but will explore the following themes within each year:

- Sustain & Protect – Nov 2022
- Shape & Attack – Autumn 2023
- Integrate – Autumn 2024

The Head of Future Force Development in Army HQ, as the Sponsor of AWE, warmly welcomes interested participants to the launch of the Urban Series, via a virtual briefing on the morning of Thursday 9 December.
