II.2.4) Description of the procurement

One Housing Group (OHG) is seeking select a private sector partner to work in joint venture to deliver the residential redevelopment of Tiller Road, Isle of Dogs, London. Existing residents and a focus on social purpose are at OHG's core as an organisation and fundamental considerations for all activities undertaken including redevelopment projects delivering regeneration such as Tiller Road. Following a recent merger OHG is now part of The Riverside Group, creating one of the largest housing associations in the UK. OHG has undertaken detailed preparation for the regeneration of the site and to arrive at the proposed solution. In 2017 an initial stock condition survey commissioned by OHG concluded that changes would bring about significant improvement in quality of life for existing residents. OHG has now completed a detailed options appraisal process with existing residents, reviewing options from minor changes to full redevelopment. The outcome was support from most residents for full redevelopment including decanting. A ballot held in April 2021 in which a 94% turnout resulted in 88% support for the preferred option confirmed this position. To help inform the options appraisal process OHG appointed PRP Architects to undertake design development to Stage 1 for full redevelopment of the site including site limitations, in particular minimising off-site decanting. Of the 72 existing units 58 are social rent tenancies, four are resident leaseholders and 10 non-resident leaseholders. Reprovision is proposed for social rent tenants and resident leaseholders only. The procurement process is a lean competitive dialogue procedure to appoint a partner to enter into a 50/50 corporate LLP joint venture. The partner will work collaboratively across all elements of pre-construction and construction to deliver high quality, private sale and affordable residential development and financial returns. The pre-construction phase will commence immediately following creation of the joint venture and will focus on design development and expedient progression of the scheme to achieve a satisfactory detailed planning consent. It is anticipated the partner will play a leading role here, using its experience to maximise the opportunity. The phased construction process will commence at the earliest opportunity following grant of planning consent, subject to decanting. It is anticipated the partner will utilise its well-established supply chains to manage cost, de-risk construction and ensure quality throughout the construction process and for the sale of completed units on the open market. It is anticipated the partner will be able to draw upon internal expertise to provide development management, project management, construction management, sales and marketing and accounting and administration services to the joint venture at a reasonable and proportionate cost. The partner is expected to be a private sector residential developer with specific experience working in joint venture partnership with public sector or affordable housing partners to design and deliver high quality, high-rise flatted residential development. The partner will be required to leverage experience, expertise, funding and development services to deliver the project. Partners should have sufficient capacity to commence design delivery leading into scheme delivery immediately on the set-up of the joint venture. To be able to maximise the opportunity commercially partners should possess a detailed knowledge of the London residential markets at the appropriate price point for Tiller Road. Application of this knowledge will allow the partner to maximise returns in terms of design, specification, marketing and sales strategy. Partners should have a good understanding of the complexities this brings. Key here is confidence gained from experience in working closely with existing residents throughout the development process. The contract duration is an estimate.
