Description

The Jubilee line 96TS (1996 Train Stock) CCTV system is experiencing high failure rates due to a combination of unavailability of replacement components due to obsolescence and environmental damage, such as water ingress and dirt accumulation.

An engineering assessment of the current system has been undertaken to understand the extent of obsolescence, component, and wiring condition as well as standards and legislation requirements. Conclusions from this work confirmed the need for a maintenance and/or replacement project that will seek and deliver the most suitable mid- and long-term solution to address the issues.

The outcome of a feasibility and optioneering process will output the preferred solution to be progressed to tender with the intention of implementing it on all of London Underground's 63 Jubilee Line 96TS fleet of trains.
