II.2.4) Description of the procurement

To process human anatomical waste that is collected in various sized, approved "single use" red lidded rigid waste containers. Typical contents will be body parts (large and small), organs, full blood and plasma bags. There will be the occasional requirement to dispose of animal body parts arising from medical training practices.

To process cytotoxic and cytostatic waste which is collected via purple coloured (soft) waste bags and various sized, purple lidded approved, single use sharps containers. Typical contents will include medicines, sharps, creams, tablets and associated material contamination (soft waste) through the delivery of cytotoxic and cytostatic drugs. It is anticipated the majority of this waste stream will transfer over to using reusable containers.

To process pharmaceutical waste (liquid and solid) which is collected in various sized, approved "single use" rigid waste containers. Typical contents will include medicines, controlled drugs and their associated, contaminated packaging conforming to EWC 18 01 09. There will exist no contamination from cytotoxic or cytostatic processes. It is anticipated the majority of this waste stream will transfer over to using reusable containers.

Although the Trust currently uses various sized single use hard burn bins for all sharps and pharmaceutical waste disposal, the Trust now wishes to move to using re-usable sharps & pharmaceutical waste containers where practicably possible. We encourage the supply of reusable containers to capture recyclable waste from theatres etc., such as single use devices, stainless steel tools and associated metal equipment for recycling.

To process sharps waste currently collected in approved orange lidded, yellow bodied, various sized, single use sharps containers. Typical waste contents will include sharps, including blades, scalpels, scissors etc., that may be contaminated with blood residues only, along with fixed or attached associated materials (handles, syringes etc.) generated mainly from Phlebotomy services, Outpatients, Theatres etc., conforming to EWC 18 01 01. There will exist no contamination from medicines, cytotoxic or cytostatic processes. It is anticipated the majority of this waste stream will transfer over to using reusable containers.

To process sharps waste currently collected in yellow lidded, yellow bodied, various sized, approved, single use sharps containers. Typical waste contents will include sharps contaminated with residues of administered drugs, along with associated material contamination (syringes) conforming to EWC 18 01 01 and 18 01 09. There exists no contamination from cytotoxic or cytostatic processes. It is anticipated the majority of this waste stream will transfer over to using reusable containers.

II.2.4) Description of the procurement

To process gypsum waste, mainly generated via clinical activity from Orthodontic services and Plaster rooms (plaster mouth moulds, removed plaster casts, unused plaster and captured plaster sludge from waste water filters). This waste stream is currently captured in offensive waste bags and approved rigid waste containers. Tenderers are actively encouraged to seek opportunities to recycle this waste stream.

To process lead waste which is mainly generated via clinical activity from Radiology and Radiopharmacy Services (used lead aprons and redundant lead containers, previously holding tiny radioactive rods). Although this waste stream is occasionally disposed of via a specialist waste collection, Tenderers are actively encouraged to seek opportunities to recycle this waste stream, as a potentially cost neutral or income generation scheme.

When required, to dispose of mattresses from wards and clinical areas that require disposal due to their natural end of life; or from breaches and tears of the outer lining or foam. Such items need to be safely disposed of and may need to be destroyed via an appropriately permitted site.

To collect and dispose of waste material referred to as "Offensive" waste or "Tiger Bag" soft waste and whose collection and disposal is not subject to special requirements in order to prevent infection, conforming to EWC 18 01 04, and is currently the Trust's largest clinical waste stream at all of our hospital sites. No soft infectious clinical waste should be disposed of in this waste stream.

II.2.4) Description of the procurement

To provide a disposal service for amalgam waste (primarily associated with dentistry) which is currently stored safely in approved, amalgam suppressant, single use rigid waste containers to prevent exposure to toxic mercury vapours.

When required, to dispose of mattresses from wards and clinical areas due to breaches, tears, or contamination of the outer lining or foam. Such items need to be safely disposed of and will need to be destroyed via an appropriately permitted site and transported under ADR regulations. Section 62 documentation must accompany the process, if applicable.

Referred to as "Orange Bag" soft infectious clinical waste, this clinical waste stream is treated via lower temperature destruction processes. Typically, this infectious waste will not be contaminated with chemicals, medicines or sharps conforming to EWC 18 01 03. Care should be taken to ensure that only "infectious" soft clinical waste is disposed of.

Referred to as "Yellow Bag" soft waste or "Yellow" WIVA rigid hard burn bin" waste containment, this clinical waste stream is treated via higher temperature incineration and is typically contaminated with chemicals generated via diagnostic processes conforming to EWC 18 01 03, 18 01 04, 18 01 06 and 18 01 07, however there exists no contamination from cytotoxic or cytostatic processes. It is anticipated that the majority of this waste stream will transfer over to reusable containers.
