- Raise awareness, by generating interest in a sector that participants might not have previously considered.
- Enable access to provision to develop sector specific skills and experience that could lead to work, volunteering or further learning opportunities. E.g., This could be in the form of workshops or a short course-based activity.
- Provide access to information advice and guidance on self-employment, setting up their own business.

We especially want to see participation from our poorest areas (as defined by the Index of Multiple deprivation (IMD)) and with communities where unequal access to the creative arts sector remains a barrier. Moving the creative arts from the margins into the mainstream.
