II.2.4) Description of the procurement

The current process for dental charting within the Glasgow Dental Hospital and School relies on paper templates. These are part of, or held within, separate written clinical records. This includes communication with dental laboratories when commissioning the construction of medical devices. These partner with electronic records to record attendance, communications and medical images. This process, although contemporaneous and ultimately functional, is not efficient within the delivery of contemporary day-to-day practice when sharing, storing, or recovering data.

Therefore there is a requirement for an electronic dental charting program that will fit within NHS Greater Glasgow and Clyde's framework of clinical record management and addresses the parameters specified in attached ITT.
