Description

CPI are looking to establish a multi-supplier framework for the supply of Printed Circuit Board Assemblies (PCBAs), primarily to support the HealthTech Technology Team, with potential use across other CPI technology units.

Suppliers selected for this framework must comply with component traceability requirements aligned with the medical device quality management system, particularly when specified at the RFQ stage. For medical device projects, suppliers must adhere to ISO 13485 standards, including strict change control processes to ensure that once supplier and manufacturer part numbers are defined and approved in the Bill of Materials (BoM), they are finalized, signed off, and recorded in the project's technical file.
