Description

The objective of the course is to accelerate a career in engineering by building a portfolio in everything from probabilistic modelling to anomaly detection. Through a variety of comprehensive modules, the aim is to gain fluency in both R and Python and combine this with a strong mathematical course in order to fully understand the techniques behind deep learning and computation using Bayesian methods. The course is delivered fully online through a combination of live sessions, recorded lectures and ongoing assessment feedback. The learning is required from Sep 2025-Sep 2026.
