Description

‘Screening tests for you and your baby’ Booklet (9 chapters, 10.5k words) is to be translated into 18 new languages. As part of our work to reduce inequalities in screening and make screening information as accessible as possible to people in ethnic minority communities, we are expanding the range of languages our main public screening leaflets are available in from 12 to 30.

‘Screening tests for you and your baby’ is the main source of information provided to new and expectant parents around the screening available to the mother and the baby, and is a critical source of information to help them to make informed choices. It is produced by NHS England and published on GOV.UK. It is normally provided to parents in digital format.
