Engagement process description

Transport for London ("TfL") intends to undertake Preliminary Market Engagement ("PME") in respect of the proposed DLR Thamesmead Extension ("TEX") Programme. The intention is to establish appetite and to harness expertise from the industry to help develop a suitable strategy for delivering all the works comprised in this Programme.

The initial pre-procurement strategy at this stage anticipates a multi-stage procurement process with an early contractor involvement. To prepare the TEX Programme procurement strategy, TfL is seeking contributions from suppliers with experience in delivering works of a similar magnitude (scale and complexity) to that of the TEX Programme to assist in developing a suitable delivery model for delivering the works. In this respect, advice and suggestions on general buildability of the scheme, concept design, phasing, packaging and sequencing of works and contractual arrangements for the work packages will be invaluable to TfL.

TfL has embarked on implementing a new delivery model. This will drive improvements, capture construction efficiencies, reduce costs, seek innovative techniques to reduce carbon and improve whole life costs.

It is anticipated that this Preliminary Market Engagement (PME) will include a Supplier Industry Day and a Market Sounding Questionnaire (MSQ). TfL may opt to subsequently hold one-to-one sessions with a selection of respondents assessed as having the capability and experience for the scope of works based on their MSQ responses.

TfL may opt to conduct further Preliminary Market Engagement in the form of additional Supplier Industry Days or further MSQs. In this case, TfL will issue a further UK2: Preliminary Market Engagement Notice.
