G-122	Lime	Line of pollarded trees around churchyard.	Re-pollard	Normal

An aerial photograph of the Trinity Church grounds in Trowbridge, Wiltshire. A yellow line outlines the approximate survey boundary. Within this boundary, several areas of trees are highlighted with orange diagonal hatching, indicating they are 'Normal priority tree work'. A label 'G-122' with a leader line points to one of these hatched areas, which is a line of pollarded trees around the churchyard. The church building is visible in the center, and a parking lot with several cars is to the left. A north arrow is located in the top right corner.
